What are the visible results?

At the end of the Treatment Phase the level of discolouration on the nail is reduced

After 9-12 months which is the average length of time a human toenail takes to grow-out completely, the discolouration will have disappeared and nails will have recovered with no signs of fungal infection.

What is fungal nail?

Fungal nail is surprisingly common; it is an invasion of fungal species underneath the nail. The fungi are passed from person to person by direct contact and are carried by carpets, socks, shoes and hosiery.

What are the symptoms?

Yellow/brownish discolouration of the nail

White 'islands' on the surface of the nail

The appearance of the nail is rougher, more brittle and with ridges.

What happens if it is not treated?

In most cases the nail will eventually crumble and become detached from the toe or finger.
