Joyride Harness Instructions (Step-by-Step Guide)

1. Take the reflective front velcro piece and bring it into the loop as shown in the video.
 - You can make the chest piece smaller OR bigger by the location of where you stick the velcro together.
 - While customers have made alterations to their harnesses for a better fit on slender and skinny dog breeds, we advise you to make an exchange.
 - If alterations are made to our products, we cannot accept returns or exchanges of the item.

Note: Please consult our size charts for dog harness sizes. You'll find a chart based on weight and another chart based on girth measurements. You'll need the measurements for your dog's chest, especially if your dog has a broad chest. Cross-reference the sizes on both to find the best fit, or check out our new Fit Finder tool. For small dogs or toy dogs, harness sizes accommodate smaller fur babies starting at 5 lbs.

2. Adjust the belly piece so that when it is on your dog, it's not too tight or too loose.
 - If it is not properly adjusted to the fit of your dog, they will slip out of the dog harness.
 - The perfect adjustment is that it's not loose, and you can still slide two fingers underneath the strap by their elbow.
3. Once it's adjusted to fit your dog, from then on, it's simple. Loop the front strap (with the reflective velcro) over your dog's head and buckle the strap under your dog's front legs to get it on.
4. Clip your leash to the desired ring on the harness. Your pooch may heel on a specific side, so the rings can be helpful in this regard.
5. Make sure to periodically check the size as you may need to adjust it again if your dog gains or loses weight. This may also need to be done whenever your dog visits a groomer and gets a haircut.
